

Ben Laskey trained on the University of Manchester ClinPsyD course. He lives in Salford where he is currently Principle Psychologist for Parenting (Salford CAMHS). He conducts research into parenting, and child anxiety and maintains strong links to the University of Manchester, Division of Clinical Psychology where he has worked as academic tutor. He was chair of the North-West branch of the Child Psychology Special Interest Group of the British Psychological Society, Division of Clinical Psychology (2006-2008).